I had a rather amazing thing happen. I was trying to jog my memory about a band I played in in HS, The SilverTones, and when I googled it, I found an excerpt from a book by Ann McCutchan, "Where's The Moon?". It had a description of the group and its origins and had a photo from 1966. The picture was small and I couldn't really identify the players. She graciously sent me a copy of the photo and it was much larger and darned if I'm not in that photo! Along with a half dozen other people I've not seen in all these years. Now I'd like to read her book, but none of Pinellas County Libraries have any of her work at all. I saw, I think it was eight, books to her credit.

Only five books, James, though no. 6 is in the works. Thank you so much for contacting me. You've made my week!
